

ARTICLE TITLE (ALL UPPERCASE LETTERS)

Author's full name (first name, middle name/initial [if any], family name):

Author's affiliation (university, research unit, institution):

Author's details (in English only, 100-150 words):

Abstract of this paper (in English, c. 200 words):

Abstract of this paper (the same, in French, c. 200 words – we can provide the translation):

Keywords (6 words or phrases maximum, separated by commas):

Keywords (the same, in French – we can provide the translation):

Note: Total length permitted (text + footnotes + works cited): 48,000 characters (spaces included), or usually between 6,000 and 8,000 words

Type your text, justified, using Times New Roman, 12-point font size, and single spacing throughout. Only the first line of each paragraph needs to be indented. That left indent will be 1.25 cms, or ½”.

Quotations exceeding 4 lines will use Times New Roman and single spacing just like regular text. Unlike regular text, though, quotations will appear in 10-point Times New Roman, and will require a 1.7-cm indent to all of the lines in the quotation (do not indent the first line of your quotation more than you do the other lines). Do not italicize the whole quotation (unless it is italicized in the original text), and do not use quotation marks (except for dialogues that use quotation marks). Please note that shorter quotations (4 lines and under) must be integrated into the paragraphs that quote them.

The first line in the paragraph just after a longer quotation will not be indented if that paragraph explains the quotation just provided. Conversely, indent the first line of the paragraph just after a longer quotation if that paragraph provides no comment on that longer quotation.

DIVIDE YOUR ARTICLE INTO SECTIONS INTRODUCED BY UPPERCASE TITLES

Use footnotes to provide additional information that you feel does not fit nicely in a regular paragraph. Please keep these footnotes to a minimum, and do not use endnotes (i.e., do not group all your notes at the end of the article).<sup>1</sup> Include parenthetical page references—e.g., (Adamson 130)—here: the reader will understand that they are being referred to page 130 of a work by a person whose last name is Adamson, whose work is included in the Works Cited section at the end of the article. No comma is necessary: (Adamson 130).

WORKS CITED (uppercase, centered, do not bold that title)

All articles will end with a Works Cited section, also written in Times New Roman, 12 points. A hanging indent of 0.7 cms will be applied to all entries in that section. The first line will thus appear flush left, whereas all subsequent lines will be indented, as in:
